Pam,
The canoeing at trout lodge with you and the wonderful talk we had while we were there has helped me so very much. You so mature for your age (that's good) May God dedication

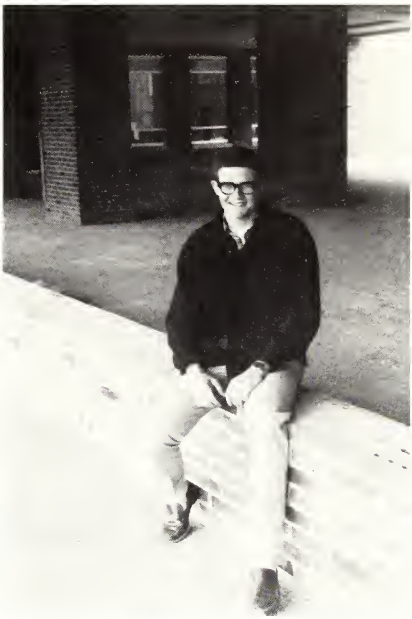
we are the new generation, dedicated to change. we are born of the past to live the present to prepare for the future. we are the link between the old and the new.

we are the seekers of knowledge and maturity. as we grow, our school grows. like us, it fuses the tradition and wisdom of the past with the freshness and vitality of the future.

we and our school are symbols of that to which the 1966 echo is dedicated. to change. . . .



letter from the editor

in the layout of the 1966 echo, the staff presents the theme of change. by adding color, by increasing the amount of art and photography, and by using a different print, we have created new effects. in an effort to deviate from the pattern of past yearbooks, we have made a new title page, a new contents page, and new class section pages. in the structure of the new yearbook, the division pages represent stages of completion in the new building.

we hope that this 1966 echo will be an accurate record of webster groves high school, told in the mood that is the mood of youth . . . change.

through the guidance council and honor code, the student body of webster exercises a rare privilege of self-gov't. the council attempts to understand the reasons behind students violations of rules and to keep rules up to date.

under the leadership of pat brandin and with the aid of faculty advisors, mr. smith and mrs. althen, the council presented an assembly early in the year to familiarize the students with the council's purpose and to afford them a chance to sign the honor code. throughout the year, the group carried on various campaigns directed toward improvement of webster, including a safe driving campaign,.a clean-up campaign, a no-smoking campaign.

sporting a webster jacket and spouting webster jargon, he was the image of a webster convert. he knew who mr. brucker was; he found out what a football championship meant. he brightened classes and enlivened student council, senior class cabinet, and varsity club. he became a hi-y enthusiast. staying with the wm. l. davis family, he adjusted himself to the american way of life. he turned all american. webster was proud to claim rudi vrugtman as its foreign exchange student for this year.

in the fall of '65, the webster statesmen cinched the big-10 championship for the consecutive year. coach jack jones' leadership, high team spirit, and first-rate playing ability combined to make a 7—1—1 season record and a winning 5—1—1 league record.

organized practice started early in august in preparation for the first game. the statesmen upset belleville to start a winning season marred by one defeat. only normandy, with a secondhalf attack, was able to overcome the orange and black effort. every game that followed was a victory for webster. by beating the rival pioneers 9—0 at kirkwood on thanksgiving day, the team concluded a great season with a perfect ending.

a touchdown or turkey day in front of thousands of loyal turkey day fans packed into kirkwood high school stadium, the men of orange and black gave thanks to the gods of football for a 9—0 victory over the fighting pioneers. spirits ran high both in the cheering crowd and on the fired up benches as the webster team controlled the ball for 30 of the 48 minutes playing time. well known casey thornhill scored the only touchdown of the day. with a good extra point kick by roland james and an end zone tackle for a two point safety by star linebacker dave mirkovich, the big-10 champs secured possession of the frisco bell for the fourth year in a row!

someone wandering through the quiet school late on a spring afternoon might have found himself charged by a squad of runners thundering down the halls. these boys were part of the large membership of webster's track team. many boys turned out for this sport because it offered such a variety of events. these included distance running, sprints, and field events. although track is an individual sport, it is highly competitive.

amid the squeels of delight and the groans of disappointment, the intramural and coaching volleyball teams strive for victory. after participating in intramural teams, seniors, juniors, and sophomores are eligible to try out for their respective class teams. then the varsity volleyers are selected from the class teams.

the volleyball schedule includes games with kirkwood, brentwood, maplewood, and university city, in the interschool matches.

the class team games are officiated by qualified students, varsity games use only officially rated referees.

"put it in", "two—yeah", "keep your zone", "guard 'em", . . . these are familiar sounds in any basketball game, and the girls' basketball class teams are no exception.

to be eligible for a class team, a girl must participate in basketball intramurals and attend the coaching sessions. twelve girls from each class are chosen for the teams that play inter-school games. from the three class teams, players are chosen for the varsity team, which also plays four games with other st. louis county schools.

under the capable guidance and training of miss mester, the teams were spurred on to a full season.

girls' athletic association

the members of the girls' athletic association give their time and effort by actively taking part in various sports the year 'round. these athletic activities include field hockey, volleyball, basketball, softball, and badminton. to become a member of g.a.a., a girl must have earned 100 points from her participation in sports. to retain her membership she must take part in at least one sport each semester.

in november, the girls prepare box lunches for their fathers at the traditional dad's night. near the end of march, g.a.a. sponsors the kampus king dance. five jacks are elected by the g.a.a. members and are voted on by all registered girl voters. the king is crowned during the coronation at the dance. at the mother-daughter banquet, held in the spring, the new members are initiated and awards are presented.

Well, do you believe the year is almost over! Thanks so much for the moral support you have lent me this remember the man from echo and his fight against trash? because of these echo week highlights last fall, echo annual subscriptions reached a record high—an encouraging start for enthusiastic staff members. the book's "change" theme soon became apparent even in its production: this year we had new sponsors, a new office, and new policies; adjusting wasn't always easy—moments of hilarity (hey, these candid shots are unbelievable!) were often tempered with moments of despair (one more retype of this 3r sheet and i'll be walking the walls!)

year in algebra. Have fun this summer. Best of Luck, at the second semester, several juniors joined the staff as apprentices to prepare for editorial positions next year. an "inchanted evening" in february saw roberts gym transformed into a glittering ballroom for the annual-sponsored echo coronation and coronation ball.

we first saw the finished product of our efforts at a staff banquet in may—and we agreed wholeheartedly that the labor and laughs of our hours in room 159 have been successfully incorporated in this '66 echo annual.

the webster echo

amid the hustle and bustle of assignments to give, organization to plan, and deadlines to meet, the webster echo staff has managed to publish an extra issue in addition to the usual ten. there have been many other innovations this year, some of which include: free issues to all webster students, the creation of a picture page, six pages per issue with eight in the thanksgiving and may issues, color in the turkey day paper, and a change in style and make-up.

in addition to these accomplishments, the staff has planned and produced their annual activities. they have sponsored "echoes of autumn", this year's paper doll prom, the alum openhouse, the journalism breakfast, and the spring banquet, when the staff positions for the next year are announced.

this year the j-class has upheld the journalistic tradition; eagerly interviewing people in all walks of school life, and plying them with questions in a never-ending search for news. the culmination of all these efforts will be realized in a position on the paper staff next year.

the j-kids are instructed in news writing, lay-out, and all the aspects converned with publishing a newspaper. it is also their duty to assist the staff in such activities as the alum openhouse and the paper doll prom. at the annual banquet in april, the j-cubbers graduate to staff status and assume their new positions, publishing the last issue of the webster echo.

a group of creative-minded students form the staff of potpourri, the school literary magazine. students are urged to contribute creative endeavors such as poetry, short stories, essays, artwork, and photography. the members of potpourri choose from among the contributions and select material for the coming issue. at "literary gatherings" commonly known as "folding parties", the staff puts together the finished copies of potpourri, which are then ready for distribution.

webster high school is proud to be a member of the pulitzer chapter of the quill and scroll, the international honorary society for high school journalists. the purpose of the organization is to create a future generation of responsible, conscientious journalists who will strive to incorporate truth in all forms of literature and publications. in webster high school quill and scroll has thirty five members from the newspaper and yearbook staffs chosen for their achievement in journalism, art, and publications. membership is open to seniors, and some juniors who have done outstanding work.

on december 13, 1965 thirty seniors were initiated to quill and scroll in a formal ceremony attended by the parents. the assistant publisher of the post dispatch spoke informally to the group; the initiates received both membership cards and pins acknowledging their membership in the organization.

the first activity of the year was the french club booth in the fall festival. a typical french painting booth was set up, in which customers painted faces rather than canvas!

miss robisco, a french teacher at hixson junior high, spoke to the club at a november meeting. miss robisco told of various holidays in france and the customs pertaining to each.

with december came the annual french club christmas party at which members enjoyed "la buche de noel", a traditional french christmas cake shaped and decorated like a log.

a dinner for the club took place later in the year. the annual french club picnic in the spring brought an end to the club's varied and enjoyable activities.

math club

the old numbers game at webster has a new look; it's being played with symbols and letters. in an effort to keep mathematically astride of the times, seniors have joined the webster chapter of the mu alpha theta, the national mathematics organization.

the semi-monthly meetings, concluded in an atmosphere of informality and camaraderie, feature lectures by qualified speakers from the st. louis area as well as presentations prepared by club members.

the main activity sponsored by the math club is the tutoring service. this service, conducted by and for students, provides qualified assistance in such courses as geometry, trigonometry, and algebra.

the purpose of the forensic league is to improve a member's skills in organized debate and to allow him to learn more about his subject through different viewpoints. the webster debate club accomplished these goals by participating in high school tournaments held in the greater st. louis area. included in the contests were opportunities for debate, discussion, and extemporaneous speaking. this year the club sponsored several tournaments at webster, as well as a speaker who talked to the entire student body.

the social events each year include a party for alumni, a picnic, and a dinner.

singing "great country" twenty times for the cbs men . . . lullabying a drowsy lady in the masonic temple basement . . . receiving star billing as the aca pola choir . . .

these are moments that '65-'66 choir members will find hard to forget. after beginning the year with a hootenanny, miss rep had the choir ready to give its first program in october at avery school and to perform enthusiastically before the cbs cameras in november.

december saw the choir hard at work learning vespers songs and attending daily 7:30 a.m. rehearsals. in order to raise money for the christmas carol association the choir spent much time singing for hotels, hospitals, community organizations, and vandervoorts. the traditional vesper services highlighted the christmas season. the fun assembly given by the choir and alums was the climax of the holiday's activities.

second semester the choir under the direction of miss replogle was working hard again to present the spring operetta oklahoma.

"kohlbry's", the night before graduation, marked the choir's last time together. the singing of their favorite songs momentarily recreated the events of a fun-filled and memorable year.

miss replogle met with beginning choir in room 117 every other day during the year. under her direction the class learned the mechanics of breath control and sight reading music.

the weeks before christmas were filled with hard work as the choir strove for perfection in its performance of "vigil" for the traditional vesper services. several caroling groups went to warson woods shopping center where they sang to help raise money for the christmas carol association.

during second semester long hours were spent in rehearsing for a part in the annual spring show.

the end of the year left beginning choir with the prospect of future a cappella choir membership.

"focus"

"movement", the key word to all modern dancers, was apparent in the activities of the modern dance club this year. club members were constantly moving. they not only danced, exercised, and worked out studies, but also put on "focus", the modern dance production for this year. mrs. bushey and mary nolan, directors of "focus" and mrs. burkholder, accompanyist helped stage the program which was presented on february 19th. when not concentrating on the show, club members spent wednesday afternoons exercising and exchanging study ideas.

webster's german club under the direction of miss fiehler, scheduled meetings three times a month on different days to enable more people to attend. film strips were shown at each meeting to afford conversational practice, increase vocabulary, and instruct students on the customs and life in germany. students correspond with penpals in east and west germany, and hungary.

in the fall festival, the german club sponsored a "bier garten" featuring root beer and pretzels. a picnic or hike is planned for the closing activity of the year.

as one of the most progressive groups at webster, the thespians and thespian understudies have made outstanding accomplishments in the field of dramatic art. both groups have worked together to produce the two major plays, "j.b.", and "the skin of our teeth". other activities have included participation in various speech meets throughout the st. louis area, and the production of several one act plays.

at christmas time the thespians held a tea for the club alums that were home for the vacation. this function, which has grown to be a tradition in the little theatre, was quite successful, as were the two cast parties, the other main social functions of the troope.

for the purpose of recording time spent in the little theatre, the drama department adopted a new system for recognizing achievement. rather than striving to accumulate a certain number of work hours, the thespians and understudies earned points for various accomplishments. points were allotted for major and minor roles, and for backstage work. although the requirements for thespian membership were not simplified under the new system, a great number of aspiring understudies were initiated into the thespian troope this spring.

'yet if you should forget me for a while

better by far you should forget and smile

TEEN-AGERS TAKE IT HARD

Webster Groves Show On Television Canceled

"Bad news. Absolutely zero bad."
That's how Webster High students greeted word of the can- [illegible] network television special "16 in Webster [illegible] shown Tuesday night. A news [illegible] instead.

[illegible] up gre[illegible] [illegible] of the cancellation via a bulletin read in all classrooms at 1:05 p.m. Teachers said the moans [illegible] ould be heard [illegible] uilding. [illegible] eacher reading [illegible] ch gave no fu- [illegible] televising the [illegible] "you may not [illegible] " (Kmox-tv said no date has been scheduled.)

Students who somehow thought the filming of the program last November and December was "like make believe anyway," were disappointed but observed "we're bound to get on sometime."

[illegible] girls who babysit had arranged to get off duty.

Little brothers and sisters had been promised they could stay up late to see the 9 p.m. show, and almost everyone was going to visit a friend with a color television set.

TV in Webster Groves

"smile! you're on c.b.s.!" smile was the word from november first to december first in and around webster groves high school. a representative suburb, webster was chosen as the subject of an hour-long t.v. documentary about what it's like to be sixteen years old in the community. dr. arthur barron and his crew, producers of "sixteen in webster groves", followed webster juniors for a month,—from home to classes at school, from two-plus-two to drive-ins and from the y.m.c.a. to church. many feet of film taken in the course of this month had to be cut to present the final hour-long color show. set for february 8th, the show was rescheduled for a later date. statesmen and webster residents alike were proud to view their c.b.s. t.v. debut.

youth and government is a laboratory in missouri state government. hi y and tri hi y club members write model bills—go to jefferson city as representatives or senators taking their model bills through the process of making the bills a model law. picture below shows barc losse, jim mcdonald (youth governor for 1966) chip covington, pam pappas, jane haberstroh, joe graves (sergeant-at-arms of senate), suzie potter and mimi toelle discussing the ways to be used in writing a model bill.

at first we all got lost in the new building, but we got found just in time to be movie stars. c.b.s. picked us because we were the best. we won the turkey game and got to ring the bell. we had santa claus and christmas vacation but no two-hour tests. we studied and got smart and now we are leaving. we were the best.
